The Miseducation of The Black Athlete: A Community Dialogue

Dr. John N. Singer, Texas A&M University Associate Professor of Sport Management in the Department of Health and Kinesiology, will address disparities in academics and educational outcomes for African-American athletes.

The public is invited to meet Dr. Singer and hear him discuss his work and research addressing critical race theory and diversity issues in organized sports with an emphasis on the interests of African-American males in the US education system.

He has presented his scholarship to audiences at the international, national, regional and local levels, and published several journal articles and book chapters related to sports, education and society.

Dr. Singer was recently named a Montague-Center for Teaching Excellence Scholar at Texas A&M’s College of Education and Human Development for his outstanding contributions to undergraduate student education.

Prior to his career in academia, he completed internships in football operations with the NFL’s Jacksonville Jaguars and marketing with the PGA Tour.

For more information, contact Dr. Daniella Ann Cook, Assistant Professor, Department of Instruction & Teacher Education, in the College of Education, at daniella.cook@sc.edu or 803.777.8076.

FREE and OPEN to the public—individuals, families, friends, churches, clubs, schools and anyone else interested in participating in this critical discussion. www.ed.sc.edu/singer.asp
